Leicester, Sunday, 7th

Dear 40 Mr. Garrison — May 1854

Mr. Wallcut forwarded to me yesterday, and I rec^d. at once a letter from Miss Estlin, enclosing one from P.P. to his wife - which I have forwarded. — Miss E. writes that "Mr. Pillsbury is much better since he came here [to Clevedon], and is exulting in roaming over hills & downs, & exploring ruined churches & castles, & county villages, & Roman encampments. He has to do it all with caution, & to avoid much walking or fatigue, but still he begins to feel that he is really at large in Old England." — If his health & strength continue to improve, he expects shortly to go to Paris, in company with Mr. Hovey, who has most kindly offered to go to Bristol to meet, & accompany him back to Paris.

Of her father she writes that he has borne the change very well (from Bristol to the little watering-place above named), though he has no faith, himself, in his permanently benefitting by ~~them~~ any change of place.

or any other modes of treatment.

I send you a translation of M. Dorval's letter to you. —

I will take Miss Cottin's letter with me to N. York. You may find a moment or two for looking at it. — They had had full talks with Pillsbury about the Standard, Webb's note to me, my Reply, &c. — She speaks of Pillsbury having written a letter to you on the subject.

Very truly Yours

S. May Jr

To Mr. Garrison